"I thank God for A Long Obedience. It is a pioneer message, first coming to us at a time when no one was talking about either 'long' or 'obedience.' And while, thankfully, others have added their voices in the intervening years, A Long Obedience retains its prophetic edge for us who live on the cusp of the twenty-first century. Rooted in the ancient psalmist's Songs of Ascents it invites us to ...

Obedience for Benedict was a "blessing to be shown by all," for it was "by the way of obedience that we go to God" (RB 71:1-2). Monastic life, as all Christian life, requires a life-long apprenticeship in obedience to God. Because obedience is a daily "on-the-job" training, the monastic community is full of mentors.
