The usual, but exceedingly naïve, answer given by evolutionists to this dilemma is that the Second Law of Thermodynamics applies only to closed systems. If the system is open to an external source of energy, it is asserted, complexity can be generated and maintained with this system at the expense of the energy supplied to it from the outside.

Down 2-0, Summit came out with a little bit of fire in the third set, opening with the first 3 points before running out to a 5-1 lead. The composure displayed in the harsh environment was encouraging to the visiting crew and coach Lex Zangari, whose team has not been in front of a crowd more than a couple of times in the last 18 months.
