You won't find a manual transmission rental car in the US at any regular rental agency. If you want a quick and dirty lesson, then ask a local car dealer. Tell them you are interested in buying a car with a manual, but have no idea how to drive it. Most are generally willing to give you a quick parking lot lesson so you can get the feel of it.

I've checked Rent-a-Wreck and can't seem to find the manual transmission filter, though I haven't tried calling. And I'm not sure if you can pick-up/drop-off in multiple locations. I've been advised to check a few specialty sites (gothamdreamcars), but unfortunately $400 A DAY (MINIMUM!!!) is not in our budget.
