The Ivory and the Horn is de Lint's second collection of short stories set in the fictional city of Newford. Readers familiar with de Lint's first collection, Dreams Underfoot, will recognize many familiar faces from Newford in this collection: Jilly Coppercorn, Geordie and Christy Riddell, and Sophie Etoile among them.

Ivory and Horn is the second collection of short stories in de Lint's Newford books. While some of them (especially the first three) still feel a bit basic, I feel like he's finding the series' voice and the city of Newford is starting to seem like a real place. Most of these tales are (for lack of a better term)...

"Charles de Lint is the modern master of urban fantasy. Folktale, myth, fairy tale, dreams, urban legend--all of it adds up to pure magic in de Lint's vivid, original world. No one does it better." —Alice Hoffman on Charles de Lint. "In de Lint's capable hands, modern fantasy becomes something other than escapism.

Reviews: Folk Tales: There's something that needs to be cleared up right off about Charles de Lint's latest offering, The Newford Stories. This isn't a new work. Rather, it's several old (or not-so-old) collections of his unique short stories repackaged in a massive, 844-page three-in-one omnibus volume.
